Lucy M. Duncan
Founder, President and CEO of Safe Ports

Speaker – Session III

An internationally recognized businesswoman with decades of experience on the world stage, Lucy M. Duncan is founder, President and CEO of Safe Ports, headquartered in Duncan's hometown of Charleston, South Carolina. Founded in 2005, Safe Ports is both an award-winning U.S. federal contractor and a thriving commercial business. Under Ms. Duncan's leadership, Safe Ports excels in logistics, inland port development, port security; disaster relief training and preparedness, and geospatial/ environmental services. The company operates globally, with an emphasis on emerging markets or countries in transition.

In November 2017, in Amman, Jordan, Ms. Duncan joined with her teaming partners – the Mafraq Development Corporation and the Jordanian Armed Forces – to announce the development of a multi-modal logistics hub known as the Safe Ports Regional Gateway. Strategically located near both the Iraq and Syrian borders, this site expects to stimulate extraordinary economic activity between those countries, along with Israel, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and nations throughout the world.

Ms. Duncan began her career as founder of Diplomatic Resolutions, Inc. (DRI), an international business development and advocacy firm, representing America's leading technology companies, including Cisco Systems, Sun Microsystems, Oracle, Iridium, Microsoft, and many others.

Post 9/11, Ms. Duncan's work shifted to find new solutions for port security, which brought national and international acclaim, with multiple appearances on CNN as well as international forums. During the early 2000s, Ms. Duncan conceived of a formula named, RED RULE: Rural Economic Development driven by Reduced Urban Logistics Exposure, or developing inland ports for international freight.

While promoting RED RULE, Ms. Duncan – and eventually Safe Ports - began supporting the US military in Iraq and Afghanistan. Her team's work on behalf of the U.S. Department of Defense has led to business success and well-deserved accolades. For instance, in October 2013, Safe Ports was awarded the prestigious US Defense Logistics Agency's Best Small Business and Best Woman Owned Business awards in recognition of its perfect performance against all metrics, in support of America's warfighters in Afghanistan. In 2016, the company received "Best Depot of the Year" for its role in operating the US Defense Logistics Depot in Guam.

Ms. Duncan is a committed philanthropist, having served as President of the Museum of the Americas, and on the boards of Spoleto USA, the Council of World Regions, the SC Medical University's Hollings Cancer Institute, the College of Charleston School of Language, Culture & World Affairs, and The Citadel's School of Humanities and Social Sciences Advisory Board, where she is currently focusing her attention on supporting the Master's Degree program in Security and Criminal Justice. Recently, Ms. Duncan joined the Board of the National Museum for First Responders to be built in Washington, DC.
